Pearl Harbor Day 2011

It was just minutes past 6:00 o'clock, the sun was not yet up and all was peaceful and quite on this December 7th in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Our band of brothers, and sisters, from the USS Frank Knox (DDR-742) Reunion Association had made our pilgrimage to the hallowed location where World War II had begun exactly 70 years before. We would spend the next 9 hours reflecting upon the memory of the December 7th Japanese attack on the U.S. Pacific Fleet.

As the sun rises the soft daylight presents in the background of the speaker's podium a powerful visual image. On the right, the USS Arizona Memorial, where the war began and to the left the USS Missouri (BB-63) where the war ended.
